We strongly object to the modified plans. They involve complete removal of all original internal walls, substantial removals to what appears to be the lining of all walls with separate stud walls, which removes any remaining character within the house and is likely to cause issues with breathability of the traditional structure.

There is a paucity of information submitted, which prevents any further assessment of the significance of the existing house, but the extent of proposed losses is extraordinarily high, and appears to demonstrate no respect for the existing fabric or understanding of its historic significance. We therefore object, based on the information submitted.
